

Organogenesis to Sponsor Jan. 30 Webinar, “Chronic Wounds and Biofilms: Advancing Assessment and Treatment,” Featuring Dr. Gregory Schultz

January 24, 2019

CANTON, Mass., Jan. 24, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Organogenesis Holdings Inc. (Nasdaq: ORGO), a leading regenerative medicine company focused on the development, manufacture and commercialization of product solutions for the Advanced Wound Care and Surgical and Sports Medicine markets, will sponsor a January 30 WoundSource webinar, “Chronic Wounds and Biofilms: Advancing Assessment and Treatment” led by Gregory Schultz, PhD, Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology and Director of the Institute for Wound Research at the University of Florida.

Webinar attendees will review the latest research on the prevalence of biofilms in chronic skin wounds and the underlying mechanisms of biofilm in wounds which inhibit healing. The webinar will also address the concept of Biofilm-Based Wound Care and the STEP-DOWN-THEN-STEP-UP approach for effective therapies in treating chronic wounds.

An important voice in the field of biotechnology and regenerative medicine, Dr. Schultz is a former president of the Wound Healing Society and co-author of more than 400 scientific publications. Dr. Schultz’s research specializes in understanding the inhibiting effects of bacterial biofilms and molecular regulation on the healing of chronic wounds.

“As a company committed to promoting evidence-based care, Organogenesis looks forward to sponsoring this educational forum featuring Dr. Gregory Schultz, a respected clinical leader and widely cited biofilm subject matter expert,” said Brian Grow, Chief Commercial Officer for Organogenesis. “Given the significant wound healing challenges posed by biofilms, this in-depth examination of the latest research and best practices is sure to provide actionable insights for the wound care clinician.”
